The FOUNDATION OF COMFORT

EVERY enduring superstructure in this world must have a good foundation.

This is of primary importance.

As a good foundation upon which to build your health and happiness, nothing can be more substantial than properly cared-for feet.

If you have two good feet under you, take care of them. Put them into the right shoes—and you may expect the permanent basis of real and lasting foot-comfort.

Every "INVICTUS" last is a faithful mould of the human foot, and upon it, from the very best materials, is made "The Best Good Shoe."

AROUND THE TOWN

Mr. C. F. Rennie and Judge Patterson were visitors at Calgary for a few days last week.

Mrs. Macpherson of the Golden West hotel is visiting in Calgary and taking in the Stampede.

A. L. Seale, manager of the Union Bank at Three Hills, was a visitor in town this week.

A. Macgregor and Mrs. Macgregor of Calgary are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Watson.

You should look up Studer's store news. It announces a great bargain event.

Mayor Atkins and Mrs. Atkins and family left on Monday by auto for a trip to Calgary for a week's holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Geddes of Calgary spent Sunday and Monday visiting with Mrs. Geddes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bricker.

Louie Liesemer and family, who have been visiting friends and relatives in the district, left for their home in Detroit, Mich., on Thursday.

Mrs. H. Heimbacher of Hanover, Ont., was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hughes of Westcott and other friends in town this week.

R. Lawson of Calgary, who was formerly in business in Didsbury, was a visitor over Sunday and Monday with friends in town.

Miss Anna Shantz, who is on the nursing staff of the Calgary General Hospital, is spending her holidays with her parents and other relatives in town.

Labor Day in Didsbury was very quiet, a large number of people taking advantage of the holiday to visit the Stampede in Calgary and others going out shooting ducks.

Write this down where you'll see it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can tend to already.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Macwherter, who have been visiting with their son, C. W. Macwherter, for the last few weeks, returned to their home in Iowa on Wednesday.

The many friends of Leigh S. Curtis will be sorry to learn of his serious illness. Mr. Curtis, Sen., of Ontario, is expected here this week and will assist Mrs. Curtis in the business during his son's illness.

Have you any news, tell the editor and he will serve it in a la mode. In case you should not happen to meet him, use the telephone or the mail. You will be helping to make your town paper of greater interest and thereby serve the general community. Whatever news may interest you must surely interest many others.

Mr. J. L. Beane's little son, Bernice, died at Calgary on Tuesday, Sept. 3rd, after undergoing an operation for appendicitis, at the age of 12 years. The funeral will leave the residence of his parents at 3 o'clock on Thursday. Services in the Adventist church. Interment at the Didsbury cemetery.

It is reported that some sneak thief entered the little restaurant at the south end of Railway avenue some days ago and stole $40 out of the cash box. Watch your houses and places of business. The large number of crooks who are coming through this district brought by the Stampede in Calgary and following up the harvest excursions are liable to give the small towns a call.

The funny incident took place last week whereby the constable and the school inspector got mixed up. It was reported to the constable that there was a book agent in town doing business without a license. Of course the constable started on a still hunt for the miscreant. Seeing a gentleman walking down the street who appeared to carry the right brand, the constable proceeded to do his duty and accosted him, accusing him of doing business unlawfully. After explanations the gentleman was allowed to depart after convincing the constable that his duties were more in the line of making business for the book agent than selling the real thing as he was the school inspector for this district.

The merchants of Didsbury are evidently vieing with each other in their window dressing, and the consequence is there is some very handsome displays being made. W. J. Liesemer's hardware store is again to the front and they are to be congratulated on the extremely handsome appearance of their north window at night with its silverware and electric lights. Durrer & Brusso show a bedroom completely furnished and Studers also are in line with a fine display. D. S. Shantz & Co. show a fine line of carpenter's hardware.

How to Make Fringe Plumes

The woman whose purse is slim and whose desires are great will welcome the fact that feathers made of fringe are fashionable.

A fringe feather sounds funny, does it not? But it is not a bit queer-looking; unusual, perhaps, and very graceful, says The Philadelphia North American.

A few years ago women were satisfied to bedeck themselves in curly ostrich feathers that measured twelve or fourteen inches, sometimes less, and were quite happy with them; but now long, willow plumes measure from eighteen to thirty-six inches, and cost many times the amount of the small natural feather.

These long, costly plumes being out of reach of many, a beautiful substitute has come from Paris and these are quite easy to make at home, if you can wield a needle.

For an eighteen-inch plume you will require one yard and a half of wide fringe, six or eight inches deep, a piece of round silk-covered milliner's wire eighteen inches long, heavy and strong, and half a yard of inch-wide satin ribbon, the color of the fringe.

First of all, cover the wire with the ribbon, sewing it very securely and keeping the seam straight; now to the ribbon-covered wire three rows of fringe are sewed, covering the seam in the ribbon and leaving a narrow strip of ribbon to show that will correspond to the rib on the natural feather.

Great care must be taken in sewing on the fringe as the whole appearance of the feather depends on it; it must be done neatly, concealing the stitches as much as possible.

Having the fringe attached to the wire, one end—the top of the feather—must be bent over in a curve to resemble the natural curve in the real feathers, then, with a heated curling iron the ends of the fringe are curled inward just a little way, and then shaken out until they are fluffy and near like the real feather as it is possible to make them appear.

The feather of fringe is ready to be sewed on to your hat, where it will droop over the brim in a most fascinating manner.

The charm of this home-made feather lies in the fact that the cost is very small and that you can indulge in any color you wish, matching the hat itself or the gown with which it is to be worn.

One-half of the world does not know how the other half lives and, more's the pity, doesn't care.

Things are always different from when other people were young.

A man self-satisfied is a man satisfied with his companion.

WOODEN culverts are unsightly, dangerous, expensive, short-lived.

Which kind of a culvert does your wagon cross?

DOES the road you use pass over rickety, dangerous wooden culverts, that are constantly in need of repairs and often washed away entirely? Or is it carried safely across the low places by modern, everlasting culverts? Build your CULVERTS OF CONCRETE which not only cannot be washed away, but actually grow stronger with age and use.

Every farmer owes it to himself to insist that the money he pays for road-taxes be spent to the best advantage. As a ratepayer, he is entitled to the best roads that can be made with that money. When culverts are washed out, and the road rendered impassable, he not only suffers inconvenience but may also be caused financial loss by inability to get necessary supplies in time for spring planting. And at best, with wooden culverts, part of the money that should be used to make better roads must be spent every year for repairs.

Might Know One

A man, apparently from the country, stepped up to the ticket-seller in the Piccadilly Tube station and asked—

Been in town long? Quite a while, replied the ticket-seller.

Know a man named O'Connell?

No. Sure you don't know O'Connell? Say, said the ticket-seller, impatiently, there are seven million people in London. Do you expect me to know every man in the bunch?

No, replied the other, but I thought you might have sense enough to know one.

Pat was busy on a Hull road working with his coat off. There were two Englishmen working on the same road, so he decided to have a joke with the Irishman. They painted a donkey's head on the back of Pat's coat, and watched to see him put it on. Pat, of course saw the donkey's head on his coat, and turning to the Englishmen, said:

Which of yez wiped your face on my coat?

I am going to put some white in the yoke, said the young lady, referring to her gown.

Something About Salt

The chief thought about salt in the minds of all holiday-makers will be in connection with the sea; but it has other uses and significance.

Most people think that spilling salt is unlucky. This superstition has been handed down from the ancient Romans. Two or three hundred years ago all the servants of the wealthy sat below the salt to show their humble origin, and this custom was observed not so very long ago in Scotland.

Saltting a coffin is still prevalent among some nations, but the most curious use to which salt is put to-day is in Abyssinia and Tibet, where cakes of salt are employed as money.

A sure way to break up a sitting hen is to run her through a thrashing machine. That will do it effectively.

SEPTEMBER

The fire last Thursday night was a good test of what the chemical engines could do if the people would only keep their heads and instead of at once running to the fire would go to the fire hall and get the engines at the first tap of the alarm. On this occasion as well as others there were only a few to take out the engines while everybody else thought it was other people's business than their own to do this work. The fire may be at your place next time and it's up to you to help the other fellow if he is to help you.

Talking about fire equipment, the town seems to be fairly well supplied, now that the new alarm bell is in working order—and that same bell is a good one—but there are a few small matters that would still make the equipment more serviceable, one of which is that the Council should make arrangements with some of the teamsters to haul the water tank for the engines to the scene of the fire at the first alarm; another is that if more interest was shown in fire brigade matters, such as getting the boys together once in a while at the fire hall for a talk on fire fighting and also more practices it would help to steady the boys in case of emergency as well as overcoming the trouble of everyone getting into everybody else's way.

An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. W. H. Hendrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup, and is my best seller." For sale by all dealers.

A Noble Vow

It was no insignificant incident which took place recently, when 300 Masons, sitting at a banquet, registered a vow to never again use profanity. There is a sign of the times that cannot be mistaken. It is the plain judgment of 300 intelligent, serious men that profanity is a low, mean practice, and unworthy of a true man. That is a growing impression, and public sentiment will one of these days ostracise the man who swears.

Even if one ignores the fact that it is an insult to the Almighty, because one does not believe in God, anyhow, still it constitutes a break in the intellectual harmony that affects seriously the correctness of the judgment. People do not think of this, but it is true as the sun shines.

An opinion with an oath is not worth half as much as one without an oath. A man who always has less faith in a declaration that requires profanity to support it than in one not so attended. But go out into life anywhere and see who does the most swearing; and then conclude whether it is a grace or an infirmity. There can be no question about its being an infirmity, and a wretched one, too.

Few, if any, medicines, have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has affected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation, for sale by all dealers.

The New Rural Municipalities

The making of legislative provision for more extensive powers of co-operation in municipal organization in the rural districts of Alberta is a necessary step in the evolution and growth of the province. The increase in population, the extension of railways, the need for greater facilities for rural organization and regulation, have outgrown the local improvement district machinery which was adapted to pioneer conditions. Wider powers of regulation and improvement are given, a juster basis of taxation is adopted, and in other ways rural Alberta has the opportunity of placing her municipal organization on a level with that of her neighbors and of the older provinces. Nothing is surer than that more extended municipal organization in the country, wisely administered, will increase the value of farm land and add to the convenience and happiness of the people. And greater control of local conditions is given to the very people who are affected by the conditions.

There is nothing in the act to hinder the provincial government from granting such assistance to roads and bridges as it has been in the habit of doing; in fact, in the newer districts especially, the people will need the continued assistance of the government on their roads and bridges. But the rural municipal councils would be in a position to supplement the work of the provincial public works department in building up their districts, and the districts which spent the most money on their own account would have a much better chance, it seems to the Advocate, to get government help than the districts which depend alone on the government and on politicians who are trying to use the government road expenditure to help their own political fortunes. The rural municipalities which have wisdom enough to spend their own money on public improvements are pretty nearly the only municipalities which will have strength enough to demand their fair share of the government money.

The government, like the Lord, usually helps them that help themselves.—Red Deer Advocate.

Another Successful Year for Western Canada College, Calgary

This well known resident and day college for boys has just closed another very successful year. Over 140 boys between the ages of ten and twenty have been in attendance during the session, September 1911 to June 1912. Many of these students have written on the college finals and the matriculation examinations for the universities and the various leading business houses and banks.

Though the present property is not permanent, yet it has been decided to install a fine system of ventilation to ensure the flow of pure air. At the same time preparations for selling the present property and moving to the new grounds of 35 acres outside the city continue. During the year a number of the leading residential schools and colleges of eastern Canada and the United States were visited and carefully studied. At present some of the best British schools are being investigated. The college will need all the latest and best equipment, and no money will be spared to that end.

Western Canada College is entering upon its tenth year; it is the oldest, the largest and the best known college between Winnipeg and Vancouver. It was founded before Alberta and Saskatchewan became provinces, and its record of success in preparing lads for college and business is amply testified by the high places taken, the scholarships won and the testimonials received.

The college continues its success in sending boys to the universities and

The girl's voice shook a little as she made the audacious request. Harry dropped back a few steps and compared the pert, powdered prettiness of the soubrette with the natural, queenly beauty of the lady. Her reply was what he had expected.

Mr. Jessop is not well enough to see people, Lisette.

I regret it, milady. Perhaps I may see him more late in the day, after dinner?

I see no necessity for it, Lady Anne said coldly, as she walked towards the house.

But Lisette stood her ground, encouraged by having a man among her audience.

Pardon, milady! But yesterday, Monsieur Jessop has said me zat it was not contented wis everying 'ere I was not to trouble milady, but to go straight to him. I am desolated to tease you wis it, milady. I have weeshed only to tell zis good, kind old Monsieur Jessop. But ze night of yesterday, quite late, nearly ten of ze clock, frightful man seize me in ze cloisters, and pinch my arm and ears, and frightened me so as I was alid dead.

Why did you not tell me of all this before? What sort of man do you mean? Lady Anne asked sharply.

A laborer, milady, all zat zere is of most common and ugly. Wis a back round, and frightful red 'air—

Red hair!

Yes, milady. I gave him one blow, and I push 'im away, and I scream. But he give a nasty laugh, and say, I catch you anozzer time! Zen I tell my mother and Maria, and zey say, it is only Sammy, who is mad! But I tell zem I am not used to have mad Sammy pay court to me, and if I did not complain to you I should complain to zis good old Monsieur Jessop.

Stay indoors in the evenings, Lisette, and these adventures will not happen to you. Lady Anne said icily. And now, Mr. Worth, if you will come into the drawing-room I will give you some tea.

He was beginning to understand her face through constantly watching it, and he could see that she was greatly troubled. She made tea in a mechanical way, and seemed to have gone back to her old indifferent, almost scornful, treatment of him. He would have felt deeply hurt by the change in her behaviour, but that he saw in her eyes a look of distress so infinite as to fill him with wonderment.

She had almost forgotten his existence as she sat there behind the lamp and the tea kettle at the table, and stared away into the gardens with an expression of something like despair upon her face.

What had happened to trouble her, he asked himself, since he had parted from her in the garden on receiving ing Stephen Jessop's summons.

Surely the knowledge that her pensioner Sammy had annoyed a member of her household by his senseless impudence was not sufficient cause for such sorrow.

As to Stephen's suggestion that she was not in her right senses, Harry's mind revolted against the thought.

There was a serene dignity about her, a gracious womanliness, utterly at variance from the idea of a disordered intellect. She was sad and thoughtful rather than merry, but her words and movements all suggested an unusual amount of self-control.

Harry did not understand her, but he persisted in believing in her.

Presently she seemed to force herself back into her surroundings, and, turning to Harry, she gave him a weary half-smile.

I know I am an abominable hostess she said. But after all, it is a compliment to treat you as if you were an old friend, so I can be perfectly natural with you.

You may treat me just as you please, Lady Anne, he said. To be able to spend a little time in your presence is sufficient happiness for me—at present.

She put down the teacup she was holding and sighed impatiently.

Ah, if you talk like that you spoil everything! she exclaimed. If you would get rid of all these mistaken ideas about me we should get on much better.

But we get on very well as it is, he suggested. And the ideas are not mistaken. I love you. You don't love me yet, but you may some day. And I hope and believe you will.

Never, she said emphatically. I don't want to hurt your feeling, Mr. Worth. I feel sure you are a very kind, frank, honorable gentleman, and most women would find it easy enough to get fond of you. But those things are not for me. I think you have made an immense mistake in coming here at all. But you make an even greater one when you suppose that I would ever, under any circumstances marry you.

And what is the insuperable reason against it? he asked quietly.

She suddenly blushed deeply and bent her head very low as she helped herself to sugar. When she looked up she answered in a bright, indifferent tone—

You are much too young for me, Mr. Worth. Too young, and too energetic, and too rich, and—oh, and too good-looking also. When I was a girl I hated good-looking men. I think I refused Lucian Warne so many times because he was so handsome.

I had no idea my fatal beauty was against me, he said. But it has elicited so little comment in America that I think you would get used to it, Lady Anne.

She shook her head at him.

Put the idea of sentiment right out of your head, and we shall be splendid friends, Mr. Worth.

We are splendid friends, I hope. And please don't call me Mr. Worth. If you would rather not call me Clavel, please say Harry.

You are very persistent, she said without much anger in her voice. Anyhow, I will show you the chapel, if you like to come.

A Gothic archway in the hall at the back of the house led into a vaulted stone passage, in which were two cell-like doors. One of them was open, and Harry could see just such a sleeping apartment as he had beheld in old monasteries on his travels, with out carpet, without comforts, and with only a meager light entering the narrow barred window high on the wall. Lady Anne closed the door as she came to it, and led him through into the chapel.

The air was heavy with the scent of the roses and lilies on the altar. Above it was a stained-glass window, modern, but of fine unconventional design. The subject was the repentant and thief, turning his dying eyes upward to his Redeemer; and written underneath on the glass in white letters on a crimson background were the words—

"Help Thou my unbelief."

To the left of the altar a good copy of the well-known painting of Christ and the Pharisee and the woman. And inscribed on the gilded frame in great black letters ran the legend—

Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more.

The place was in beautiful order, and there was no speck of dust on the mosaic pavement, or on the altar, or on the tomb Harry had come to see. This was of stone, large and massive, and still bearing the original brass, with the figure of the Abbot and a long inscription in Latin.

It was while Harry was bending over this and endeavoring to decipher it that he became suddenly aware that he and Lady Anne were not alone in the chapel.

On one side of the altar steps he had imagined that a small heap of black curtains or hangings had been placed. But he presently caught sight of solid movement among the dark drapery, and of a face, worn, wrinkled, and of a yellowish pallor turned in his direction.

Lady Anne must have seen it, too. But she made no comment. Possibly, in the dim light of the chapel, which was illuminated only by the window of stained glass and a small suspended lamp, she supposed that Harry had not distinguished that crouching figure at the altar steps.

In any case, she touched Harry's arm and led him out of the chapel. It is chilly in there at an evening, she said as he took his leave of her. She watched him from the Gothic porch of stone overhanging with crimson roses which led into the house, and as he passed beyond the yew hedge, she walked with a determined step to the door of her room, and unlocking it, passed through into that of Stephen Jessop.

How dared you tell Harry Clavel that lie? she asked in tones of passionate excitement.

Offered Hills Bid

A Yorkshireman recently entered an auction mart. Looking around and catching the auctioneer's eye during a lull in the bidding, he shouted loudly enough to be heard by all:

May I bid?

Certainly, said the man of the hammer, thinking him a customer.

All eyes being turned on the customer, he, making for the door, said:

Well, I bid you good-night, then.

The laughter which followed stopped business for some time.

Most Excellent Reason

It was a gala occasion at the school, and the young lady principal was very anxious that her pupils should show off to the best advantage before the many ladies present.

So to the first scholar she said:

Now, Grace, where was Mary, Queen of Scots, born?

At Linlithgow, answered the pupil.

And why was Mary born there? asked the teacher.

And sweet little Grace promptly answered:

Because ma'am, her mother was staying there.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER
DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and stomach disorders come without warning and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the home where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. Mrs. Adele Outlette, St. Bruno, Que. writes: 'My baby was troubled with his bowels, but Baby's Own Tablets soon set him right again.' The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MONEY TO LOAN ON FARM PROPERTY AT CURRENT RATES OF INTEREST

More About The Loading Platform

The present generation of Western farmers will never know the difficulties and vexations experienced by their predecessors in the earlier years when no one could get a carload of grain shipped in bulk except by loading it through an elevator. The system forced the majority of farmers to sell their grain to the elevator owners at arbitrary prices, and oftentimes to submit to heavy dockage and other annoyances, causing continual dissatisfaction. Now however the distribution of cars as fixed by the Grain Act, and the use of the loading platform, provide facilities which enable the farmer to secure satisfactory treatment in the disposal of his grain, and the highest market prices at time of sale. Every farmer therefore, should more and more endeavor to use the loading platform in shipping his grain to the terminal elevators. It is the safeguard of the farmers' freedom in disposing of his grain to the best advantage for himself. If farmers refrain from using the loading platform freely, it might result in its being done away with, because railway companies and elevator owners are strongly opposed to it. It is easy to understand why elevator people desire the loading platform abolished. The railway people on their part say it delays the loading of cars and helps to cause car shortage. This we know to be nonsense, because frequently after cars are loaded whether with grain, coal, lumber or other merchandise, they are sidetracked for days and even weeks instead of being promptly moved forward to destination. It is engine shortage and shortage of competent train men that mostly causes grain blockade on railways and not lack of cars. Let every farmer therefore, if he can, use the loading platform and become an independent shipper. In subsequent advertisements we will state in detail the savings and other advantages of direct loading into cars compared with loading through elevators.

We handle the farmers' grain strictly on commission, make liberal advances on car bills of lading, supervise the grading at time cars are inspected, secure the highest prices at time of sale and make prompt returns when sold. Write us for shipping instructions and market information.

Get My New Portable GRANARY

SEE how handy my new granary is. You place four or five of them around your quarter section. This saves time in harvest hauling to stacks.

Then my granaries come in to hold your grain from each stack. My granary keeps grain clean, dry and unheated. No musty grain, no losses from rats or vermin. When ready haul direct to the elevator from the granaries.

I make several sizes of this handy granary. You can get 150, 200, 300, 400, 500, 600 and 1000, full measure guaranteed Imperial Bushel sizes (not small U.S. bushels) and you set up any Pedlar Granary in half a day. Remember you can move it easily any time. My Granary saves big money by cutting down teaming and keeping the grain right.

See how the man at the left can shovel grain in from the threshing machine, if it has no leg-spout to deliver grain direct through the manhole on the roof. The other man is bagging grain. Granaries are had with door-section or plain, as desired. My new Granary is just right for saving cost. It pays for itself in a year. It comes in sections—low freight cost. A boy can set up. MORE GERMAN PERIL

SIR ARTHUR LAWLEY SEES A REAL DANGER

Believes that the Most Potent Factor in the World's Peace is the British Navy —Sir Wilfrid Laurier Says Bad Arbitration is Better than Successful War

Ottawa.—At a luncheon given to visiting British financiers and legislators at the Chateau Laurier, the guests included several members of the Dominion cabinet and the former Liberal government, among them Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. F. D. Monk, Crothers, Hon. W. B. Naftel, Hon. J. D. Reid, Hon. W. J. Roche, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Hon. W. S. Fielding.

In proposing the toasts to the guests, Sir Wilfrid Laurier in pointing out how Canada's differences with the United States had been settled during the past hundred years, without resort to arms, said a bad arbitration was better than the most successful war. Touching on the race for armament in Europe, he said:

Thank God, Canada shall never go into it to settle her differences by such a race. In England you think of armament and wars; in Canada, we think of canals and railways, and public works.

As to the German peril Sir Wilfrid believed that Germany was only seeking territory for colonization. He believed there was enough for Germany without embroiling Great Britain into a national war. He mentioned the present Panama canal dispute to say that he believed that British and Canadian diplomacy would be able to settle it to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Sir Arthur Lawley, a formerly governor-general of South Africa, said he had recently taken part in the reception to the Canada premier at the Royal Colonial Institute in London. He said that Mr. Borden told of his work in welding together a nation in Canada. He stirred the heart of every Englishman, however self-centred, un-emotional and insular he might be. Our welcome to Mr. Borden, he said, was no mere act of courtesy, but it was the hand-grip of a common empire.

Touching on the matter of imperial union, Sir Arthur said that at the present time, the union of the British self-governing dominions was being promoted for the purposes of defence. He proceeded to justify this way of looking at the world situation. Europe was just now a vast armed camp. Germany, the world's greatest naval power and the second greatest military power, was arming herself prodigiously with no ostensible reason. At any moment England might find herself embarked upon a colossal fight, and he would not insult the intelligence of his auditors by pointing out the inevitable effect on Canada of a great continental war.

It is more comfortable at the present time to prattle about perpetual peace, said the speaker. But the most potent factor in the world's peace today is the British navy.

No Favors From Canadian Roads

London.—The proposal to hold the next annual conference of the Institute of Journalists at Montreal was discussed at a recent meeting, a resolution to that effect being carried by a substantial majority.

Robert McDonald, president-elect, and editor of the London Chronicle, considered the proposal neither practical nor expedient on the ground of expenditure of time and money.

The members of the Institute were not missionaries or commercial travellers, he said, but working journalists.

Again, it would be below the dignity of the Institute to accept the hospitality of great Canadian railroad corporations, against whom the Canadian journalists themselves were generally fighting.

Israel Zangwill supported the resolution remarking that he saw no reason why they should object to Canada helping the Empire.

Big Reform in New Zealand

London.—A Wellington, N.Z., correspondent says a measure aiming at the destruction of political patronage has been introduced.

It provides for the appointment of a commissioner, having whole control of all the chief departments, except the railways.

This official may be suspended on the ground of incompetence or misbehaviour, by the governor, but can be dismissed only by the House.

His decision will be subject to review by the appeal board and applicants soliciting support of members of parliament for appointment of promotion in the public service will be disqualified.

OFFICIAL PROTEST BY BRITAIN

Will Appeal to Hague Unless Settlement of Canal Matter is Reached

Washington.—Great Britain has reaffirmed its protest against the Panama Canal Bill. In a note filed with the State Department by A. M. Innes, charge of the British embassy here, it was stated that if a satisfactory agreement could not be reached Great Britain would appeal to the Hague tribunal for arbitration.

The note submitted, says Great Britain will give careful consideration to both the bill and the message President Taft sent to Congress regarding discrimination in favor of American coastwise shipping in the canal. If after due consideration, it is found that no satisfactory agreement can be reached in the matter, Great Britain declares that it will be necessary to appeal to arbitration.

Strathcona On Panama Bill

London.—Lord Strathcona interviewed on the question of the Panama canal deprecated too much public discussion pending further developments. If the bill, he said, had been passed as originally intended, a bill so that every nation should have a free unrestricted use of the canal, it would have been a great benefit to every country doing trade with the west coast. It would have facilitated and cheapened the transporting of passengers and of light goods which form so large a proportion of the traffic of railways. If these discriminating provisions, however, in favor of the United States should come into operation they would seriously hamper the other nations which carry so much of the overseas trade.

I am not, however, to be counted among those Canadians who charge their statesmen with criminal negligence or cowardice, because of their passive, and even at times, submissive attitude towards the arrogance of the Yankee.

They believe, and rightly so, that even, if victorious, Great Britain would gain nothing by war with the States, while she would make tremendous financial losses and run the risk of famine and social revolution at home.

This is known in Washington better than Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto, where we lay deep in the narrow quietness and childish pretensions of our colonial irresponsibility.

No wonder, therefore, that American rulers, indifferent as they are to all precepts of international honor and integrity, should laugh at England's protests.

As to Canadian wailings, they mind them no more than the complaints of the remnants of Indian tribes.

The writer then says that England has encouraged the United States in its cynical attitude by giving it its moral support in the war with Spain, and by its spoliation of the Boer republics in the Boer war and concludes:

Then, if international compacts are important to preserve peace and good order in the world, engagements between provinces and races of a confederacy are equally essential to social and national honor.

The Canadian Confederation rests on the terms of the agreement accepted by the former provinces, and especially of the compact between the Anglo-Protestant majority and the Franco-Catholic minority.

How has the plighted faith been kept? The words of honor respecting observed?

A country in which the notion of moral rights and good faith to minorities is weakened soon loses the secret of necessary strength to have its material rights respected by others.

An old French proverb says that treachery always pays back its master.

Let the frantic denunciators of Taft in Canada meditate over the maxim,

SOUTH AFRICA TO HAVE FAST ARMED LINERS

Union Will Follow Canada's Lead in Augmenting the Empire's Fleet

Capetown.—The South African government has taken advantage of the opportunity afforded by the mail contract, which has just been negotiated by Sir D. P. de Villiers Graaf, in London, to make new and important arrangements regarding the South African contribution to imperial naval defence.

There is every indication that the union has decided to follow the lead of Canada and to provide a fleet of fast armed liners, which will be convertible into naval auxiliaries capable of holding the east-bound trade route in time of war.

This is suggested by the announcement that the new contract provides for the complete replacement of the existing union castle fleet, during the currency of the contract, by bigger and faster steamers, following Sir D. P. de Villiers Graaf's recent secret conferences with Mr. Churchill, wherein the subject of armed liners was discussed.

It is anticipated that the money contribution for the navy will be withdrawn, and that the saving thus affected will help to make up the difference between the old and new contract price. The arrangement is likely to be received very cordially in South Africa, where it is fully realized by Dutch and English alike that the present contribution is wholly inadequate.

It is understood that the imperial authorities are fully satisfied with the arrangement.

IEWS OF BOURASSA

SAYS CANADA WILL GET WORST OF CANAL DISPUTE

Leader of French-Canadian Nationalists Draws Parallel With Certain Other Events in Canada, and Says Britain Will do Anything Rather Than Risk War with U.S.

Montreal.—In the "Devoir," Henri Bourassa, leader of the French-Canadian Nationalists, deals with the attitude of the English and Canadian press with regard to President Taft's message on the Panama Canal legislation.

It may be taken for granted that this turn will end all previous Anglo-American imbroglios at Canada's expense—for it is Canadian sea traffic that will suffer most from the discrimination made in American coastwise trading.

It will be settled as the Maine and Ohio boundary dispute, the Atlantic fisheries, the Alaska boundary, the Clayton-Bulwer treaty were all settled.

From my first stay in London in 1901 and from personal conversation with various British statesmen and publicists, I have come to the definite conclusion that the Imperial Government, with any party in power, will stand anything rather than risk a conflict with the United States.

I am not, however, to be counted among those Canadians who charge their statesmen with criminal negligence or cowardice, because of their passive, and even at times, submissive attitude towards the arrogance of the Yankee.

They believe, and rightly so, that even, if victorious, Great Britain would gain nothing by war with the States, while she would make tremendous financial losses and run the risk of famine and social revolution at home.

NO ALBERTA GRAIN BLOCKADE

More Cars to Move Crops, Empty Elevators and Two Weeks Earlier Harvest

Calgary.—The grain committee of the Calgary board of trade, which has been inquiring into the possibilities of the grain blockade this year presented its report.

The report states that the danger is reduced to a minimum, basing it on three contingencies known, more cars in which to move the crop, empty elevators at country points and a two weeks' earlier harvest.

The committee asks owners of grain in Alberta to bend every effort to get the grain ready for market at the earliest possible moment and also requests railways to have equipment on hand ready to receive early shipments.

Over ninety per cent of the elevators are empty and ready for the 1912 crop.

From figures compiled by the committee it was learned that last year Alberta received its proportion of cars as compared with the two other prairie provinces.

The report urges all parties concerned to unite in one common effort to dispatch as much grain as possible before the close of navigation, as this governs considerably the effect afterwards and will undoubtedly prevent a congestion this year and enable elevators to maintain an ingress and egress of grain through the markets.

Copies of the report were ordered sent to Messrs. Bury and Price of the C.P.R.; W. J. Tregillus, president, and E. J. Fream, secretary of the United Farmers of Alberta; and to L. P. Strong, president of the Calgary Grain Exchange.

Homestead Entries

Ottawa.—During the first six months of 1912 homestead entries for the four western provinces recorded by the officials of the interior department numbered 19,591, as against 18,509 for the same period in 1911, an increase of 1,082. For Manitoba the entries totalled 1,710, as against 1,459 in 1911 and for British Columbia they increased from 124 to 138. Both Saskatchewan and Alberta show decreases.

The entries for Saskatchewan for the six months stood at 9,340, as against 10,409 for the first half of 1911, while the Alberta entries fell from 7,585 to 7,336.

The nationality returns show that the Americans headed the list with 1,067 entries. English homesteaders numbered 540; Scotch, 101; Irish, 122; Russians, 126; Norwegians, 146; while 242 Canadians from Ontario and 95 from Quebec took up land in the west.

TECHNICAL WORK IN WINNIPEG SCHOOLS

Future Generations to be Taught Practical Accomplishments

Winnipeg.—We are going to teach the future mothers of the city how to cook, make their own dresses and trim their own hats and we are going to teach the future bread-winners to shoe a horse, build a house, make a dynamo, manufacture furniture and do all the other necessary and practical things that are in demand.

This is in effect the edict of the Winnipeg school board in its announcement to the Winnipeg public of the technical work outlined for the new school year. All of this technical work will be taught in Winnipeg's two new magnificent high schools, and is further evidence that from the standpoint of progressiveness the Winnipeg school board takes rank with the best on the continent.

California Professor Considers German Emperor Should Get Nobel Prize

Victoria.—In an address before the Canadian Club here, Professor Benj. Wheeler, of the University of California, made the novel suggestion that the next Nobel peace prize should be given to the German Emperor.

For twenty-five years, he said, he has had a mighty war machine under his hand and has never used it.

After regretting the strained Anglo-German relations he said that it was not territory, but protection against arbitrary interference with the progress of German development, which had caused the growth of the Kaiser's navy.

"Count Your Blessings"

WOULD you be willing to go back to the standards of living that prevailed in 1812?

In spite of all the praise of "the good old days," would you be content to give up the many conveniences we have gained in the past century?

Former generations knew nothing of the luxuries of modern travel with its observation cars, individual lights in Pullman berths, phonograph recitals, rich appointments, home-like comforts, and especial safety devices with which the modern railway system surrounds its passengers.

The rural telephone now places the farmer in instant communication with the source of the latest market reports, and saves him many hours of precious time in the event of sickness or accident.

The introduction of the typewriter and adding machine has lightened the load and lengthened the day of the business office.

It was Advertising that first proclaimed the usefulness of these devices, that created an immediate and universal demand for them, that established a world-wide distribution which made them readily accessible to us all.

McCormick invented the reaper and thereby made himself an everlasting benefactor of the farmer. But it was Advertising that carried the wonderful news with its far-reaching significance to the "man with the hoe."

You know what housework used to be. Realize what it is now, since the advent of sanitary plumbing fixtures, hot-water heating, vacuum cleaners, and electric household appliances. Advertising has brought these things into your home. It has eliminated drudgery.

Advertising is service. Science, invention, commerce, are all indebted to its aid. It has raised the standard of living, elevated business ethics, and put us within reach of more real comforts, more real blessings, than we ever enjoyed before.

Advice regarding your advertising is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

Vote Favorable

The vote of the ratepayers in the eastern part of the district on Saturday last for or against forming into a municipality was certainly not very large, in fact it's a wonder that there was so little interest taken in a measure that affects the people so closely. The vote was entirely in favor of forming into a municipality, as near as we have been able to find out so far it being about six in favor to every one against.

Neapolis News

(Too late for last week.)

Mrs. J. A. Gateman of Didsbury visited her friend, Mrs. R. C. Oldham, at "Hymerica" ranch Tuesday.

Miss Alice Stuart, who has been seriously ill the past ten days, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Prout, the Hansen young folks and G. R. Oldham and wife were to dinner at R. C. Oldham's Sunday.

A number of Neapolis people contemplate going to the "Stampede." Are you?

A new church board was elected Sunday. Everything was harmonious and we know they will have the hearty co-operation of the community in their work the next six months.

Cecil Forrester has resigned his position in the store and is rusticating on a ranch.

Peter Falk, Neapolis, successful book agent, is to take a vacation which he will spend in Saskatchewan Eh, Pete.

Obituary

Thelma Louise, second child of Mr. and Mrs. Ona Turnaciffe, departed this life August 28, after an illness of almost a year. She was born Sept. 17, 1909. Little Thelma was a very bright, beautiful child and with her winsome way she drew all hearts to her.

Funeral services were conducted at the house by Elder Aalborg of Calgary, who spoke words of comfort and hope from John 14:1-2-3.

The floral offerings were most beautiful. A life as beautiful as the flowers that covered the casket in which the body now rests has been in our midst. As fragrant as the odor of the flowers is the memory of that little life.

The grief stricken parents and relatives have the entire sympathy of all.

Card of Thanks

We extend our thanks to friends who so willingly assisted us in our sad bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. TURNACIFFE

MR. AND MRS. HANSEN AND FAMILY.

Running up and down stairs, sweeping and bending over making beds will not make a woman healthy or beautiful. She must get out of doors, walk a mile or two every day and take Chamberlain's Tablets to improve her digestion and regulate her bowels. For sale by all dealers.

Every Line is Interesting

The Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer have evidently found the secret of perpetuating youth. After sixty-eight years of untiring faithful service devoted to the upbuilding, and shaping of fortunes and destinies of the Dominion, it still continues to set the pace in the field of weekly newspaperdom in Canada.

It has always aimed at the highest standards, and proven itself to be a most reliable national and home newspaper. The agricultural interests and general welfare of our nation have been and are still in the broadest sense of the term, its chief concern.

In order to maintain this premier position and keep abreast of the phenomenal development and growth of Canada, the Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer has increased its facilities and perfected its mechanical equipment. Apparently nothing has been left undone to make every detail from the gathering of the news to the delivery of the paper to the reader complete. The Outlook (New York) was pleased to say in a recent issue, that it is now the most complete newspaper plants on the continent.

The staff has also been increased that the improved facilities may be fully utilized. Full and accurate synopsis of the world's news written by trained men, who know how to say what is necessary in the fewest words; originally and carefully edited articles; special contributions from leading writers. Miscellaneous reading of the very highest standard are features which make it the leader among Canadian metropolitan weeklies. Every department pulsates with vitality. The four pages of bright pictures on calendered paper is in itself equal to fifty-two of the ordinary premiums given away each year by some papers.

Very favorable arrangements have been made with the Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer whereby our readers can have it in combination with this paper on remarkably favorable terms. Sample copies will be sent to any address by making application either verbally, or by card to this office. *

Crop Prospects

Despite the cool damp weather of the last two weeks the harvest seems to be pretty well assured in this district, except with the very late sown grains. A great deal of barley, rye and oats have already been cut and as soon as it gets a little drier again the harvest will be rushed to completion. The frost on Thursday night last does not seem to have done much damage according to reports given to us by several farmers. In some low spots the grain suffered to some extent as well as potatoes, but it is not thought that any great damage has resulted as most of the grain was pretty well advanced.

Heavy yields of all kinds of grain are looked for as the growing season was ideal for the filling out of the grain
